Lionel Messi's potential to become arguably the greatest footballer of all time was clear for all to see at Barcelona when he emerged as a teenager, according to Ronaldinho. Messi claimed a record-extending eighth Ballon d'Or award after helping Argentina end a 36-year wait to lift the World Cup in Qatar last year, scoring two goals in the final and slotting a penalty in the shoot-out, en route to being named the player of the match in the victory over France.

It completed a career resume littered with both individual and team accolades, a career that started in Barcelona's youth team where he made an immediate impression on some superstars of that generation.

"Me, Deco and the whole team had been following Leo since the youth team, going to watch his games," Ronaldinho told The Athletic

"We already expected that he would be the best."
