Competition and pressure for faster times have led to the development of special ized triathlon clothing that is adequate for both swimming and cycling, such as speedsuits.

Amateurs, who make up the large majority of triathletes, are often referred to a s "age groupers" since they are typically further classified by sex an d age; which offers the opportunity to compete against others of one#39;s own g ender and age group.

The primary distinguishing feature of running in a triathlon is that it occurs a
