Wikipedia: Disco - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
Disco is a genre of music that emerged in the United States in the mid-1960s, and spread to other parts of the world. It is characterized by a strong rhythmic beat, often with a four-on-the-floor pattern, and a focus on danceable, repetitive patterns. The genre is often associated with the disco scene of the 1970s, which was a cultural movement that emphasized dancing and self-expression.

On October 31st each year people across the United States celebrate Halloween, or All Hallow's Eve. Widely geared toward young children who enjoy wearing costumes, trick-or-treating, and pumpkin carving, Halloween has become the second-largest commercially celebrated holiday in America grossing over $8 billion in sales.

Although there are some families who don't celebrate for secular reasons, the majority of the them don't take part in halloween, for religious reasons. Religion plays a key role in most other major holidays such as Christmas, Passover, easter, and Yom Kippur, but halloween is not usually associated with religion.
